ENGLISH

A major in English at the University of Michigan-Dearborn focuses on the dynamic intersection of language, literature, and society as well as the identities and communities shaped by this intersection.

English majors have the opportunity to explore the relationships between reading and writing by becoming familiar with the strategies that writers use to shape conceptions of truth. The English faculty’s primary goal is to help students develop a sensitivity to the ways spoken and printed language frame how we conceive and discuss our identities throughout history, in the context of a global community both in — and beyond — Metropolitan Detroit. English majors may expect to develop a close relationship to the social ramifications of the written word and its potential for incorporating both communities and individuals into a larger, more internationally aware reading and listening audience.

The UM-Dearborn English faculty offer courses that contextualize language in terms of the various traditions and genres of British and American literature, and of world literature in English, and that provide the critical skills necessary to craft effective expository and creative prose.

The English faculty are both committed, innovative teachers and active scholars, and include recipients of the campus’s awards for Distinguished Teaching and Distinguished Research. Faculty frequently direct students in independent study projects, and often teach courses that connect literature to other fields, from history and the arts to religion, philosophy, science, and visual culture.

Humanities Internship Program
The Humanities Internship Program offers practical experience to students concentrating in English and other humanistic fields and those interested in communication or journalism. Students gain and demonstrate skills desired by employers, make important contacts, and explore a field of work before graduation. For more information on the Humanities Internship, see the Internship Coordinator, 3028 CB, 313-583-6376, or inquire at the Literature, Philosophy, and The Arts Department Office in 3011 CB, 313-593-5433.

Independent Study
Independent Study (ENGL 399) provides an opportunity for students to extend the work of existing courses or to explore areas not included in the current course offerings. Consult the Literature, Philosophy, and the Arts Department Guidelines for Independent Study, available in the Department Office, 3011 CB, 313-593-5433. To enroll in an independent research project, students must have a prior, written Independent Study Contract with the instructor and prior, written permission of the Department Chair. One to three credit hours available.

This course serves as the “gateway” to the major with enrollment limited to 20 students per section. ENGL 200 exposes students to the terms of English Studies, literary criticism and literary theory, knowledge essential to higher-level English courses.

Virtually all upper-level English courses require as prerequisites ENGL 200 and COMP 106 or equivalent. In addition, other prerequisites for a specific upper-level English course may be introduced by the instructor in the term in which the course is offered. Students are advised to consult the current Schedule of Classes for prerequisites each term. If a student has not satisfied the prerequisites of a course, the student may be enrolled by permission of the instructor, provided that there are other relevant qualifications.

Major Requirements

All students majoring in English must complete 30 credit hours of upper-level ENGL.

It will approach the issue of adaptation by examining the works of key directors, multiple films of a single play, silent films, foreign language adaptations, mass market and art house films, and films which deal with fictive or actual productions of Shakespeare's plays. Special emphasis will be placed on specific stage productions that are later adapted to films. In this course, students will explore a broad range of responses to and interpretations of Shakespeare's works. This class will stress the idea that each staging is an interpretation of the play; its point of view conditioned by the times, the medium, and the director's vision. (OC)
