HUMANITIES

The Bachelor of Arts in Humanities has a strong interdisciplinary focus. Students in the major design an individualized course of study in three CASL disciplines from the list below, chosen according to their own interests and in close consultation with a faculty advisor. Students are encouraged to choose fields of study with significant interrelations. A student may, for example, develop a program in Women’s and Gender Studies, Art History, and French; or a program in Communications, Philosophy, and History. Students follow a rigorous course of study while enjoying the stimulus of a program tailored to their special interests and goals.

The flexible, individualized design of the Humanities major makes it attractive to a wide range of students. The program offers a broad liberal education for pre-professional students planning to go on in law, journalism, or library science. It works well for independent, intellectually active students who want to pursue their interests in several different disciplines. And for students in the Honors Program, the Humanities major provides an excellent way to continue their interdisciplinary study of history, literature, and society.

Disciplines included in the Humanities major: African and African American Studies, Arabic Studies, Art History, Comparative Literature, Communication, English, French Studies, German, Hispanic Studies, History, Journalism and Screen Studies, Linguistics, Music History, Philosophy, and Women’s and Gender Studies.

Special emphasis will be placed on specific stage productions that are later adapted in to films. This course introduces key questions and debates in lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer studies.
